INVESTMENT MANAGERS' COMMENTARY

In July, financial markets proved resilient despite a challenging geopolitical environment. The military escalation between the United States and Iran was the main event of the month. The closure of the Strait of Hormuz briefly pushed Brent above USD 100 per barrel, reigniting concerns over an oil shock and renewed inflationary pressures. Against this backdrop, major central banks adopted a cautious stance. The ECB kept its policy rates unchanged on 23 July, with Christine Lagarde reiterating that the institution was not committing to any predetermined interest-rate path, amid greater uncertainty surrounding the inflation outlook. The Fed also kept its policy rates unchanged, against a backdrop of differing views within the FOMC. Despite this environment, markets remained resilient, supported by corporate earnings that were generally ahead of expectations. Credit markets experienced only a modest widening, both in indices and cash bonds. In equities, the Euro Stoxx 50 rose by +0.5%, while the S&P 500 declined by -0.1%.

The various investment segments experienced contrasting dynamics during the month. The Credit segment was one of the main contributors to performance, in a resilient credit market despite elevated volatility. Carry strategies contributed positively, notably through Mizuho 07/29 and Main iTraxx S45 06/31. Skew strategies, which seek to exploit valuation discrepancies between an index and its constituents, as well as relative-value strategies, also contributed positively, notably through CDX IG S42 06/29 and BCG 07/31 versus Crédit Agricole 06/31. Despite continued strong primary-market activity in European ABS and CLOs, spreads remained broadly stable, confirming strong investor appetite. The ABS segment was further strengthened by a new position in ALPG 2026-1, the first German consumer loan transaction placed by PayPal Europe. The Fixed Income segment, by contrast, was negatively impacted by elevated rate volatility, amid rising short-term rates in EUR and GBP. This increase weighed on strategies positioned to benefit from lower yields, notably through short-dated swaps. The flattening of the EUR 10-30 year curve was also detrimental, as 10-year yields rose more than 30-year yields, penalising positions benefiting from a steepening of this part of the curve.

Among the equity-oriented strategies, the M&A segment declined over the month. This underperformance was primarily driven by the failure of Zijin Mining's proposed acquisition of Allied Gold, after the two parties abandoned the transaction following the failure to obtain the final approval from the NDRC. This decision appears to have been driven more by the Chinese regulatory and political environment than by the fundamentals of the transaction. Performance was also negatively impacted by the widening discount on Warner Bros. Discovery following the suspension of the transaction by a US judge. By contrast, the Convertible segment delivered a positive performance, supported by carry and several individual contributors. The Cellnex 0.75% 11/31 convertible benefited in particular from press reports pointing to a review of the company's strategic options. Following the rise in the share price, a partial profit-taking was implemented. The LagFin / Campari 06/28 exchangeable bonds were also tendered as part of the issuer's tender offer in order to participate in the new 08/33 issue.
