INVESTMENT MANAGERS' COMMENTARY

The Stork DMS fund continued its positive momentum and delivered a strong performance at the start of the second half of the year. In July, the macroeconomic environment improved, supported by progress in trade negotiations between the United States, the European Union, and Japan. The agreements, featuring lower-than-expected tariffs, a partial freeze on retaliatory measures, and bilateral investment commitments, helped ease tensions. In the United States, second-quarter growth reached an annualized 3%, driven by strong exports, high public spending, and a robust labor market. With inflation remaining moderate, the Fed kept rates unchanged at 4.25%–4.50%, while the ECB maintained its rate at 2.15%. Euro Investment Grade spreads tightened to 95 basis points, a year-to-date low. The S&P 500 gained 2.16%. Supported by favorable conditions, all segments posted positive performances. The Credit segment benefited from renewed demand for Investment Grade - particularly in euros - seen as a safe haven amid U.S. uncertainties. Spreads tightened in a fluid secondary market despite a primary market slowdown due to the summer period. Carry strategies, such as Gecina 01/28 and the reverse Yankee JP Morgan 06/28, contributed to performance, as did cash/CDS arbitrage trades on Bertelsmann 05/29 and Publicis 06/28. The Fixed Income segment also advanced, helped by the ECB's firmer stance, which tempered expectations of rate cuts in 2025 and led to further spread tightening. Asset swaps on Spain 2029, Austria 2039, and Slovakia 2051 thus supported performance. Interest in Canadian and Australian provincial bonds, such as Ontario 2031 and Queensland 2030, remained strong due to their yield premium. In securitization, although spread tightening was more moderate than in other asset classes, ABS and CLO funds benefited from the favorable backdrop, remaining active to enhance portfolio potential. In the equities space, the M&A segment benefited from a broad-based narrowing of portfolio discounts as well as the completion of numerous transactions. For instance, the Ansys-Synopsys merger, announced in January 2024, proved successful after receiving conditional approval from China's State Administration for Market Regulation, which swiftly reduced the discount. Meanwhile, the Convertible segment delivered solid monthly returns, driven in particular by the financial portfolio, with the banking sector entering a consolidation phase. The Rabobank 4.375% Call 2027 position fully captured this momentum. Following the earnings season, the Diasorin 05/2028 convertible bond appreciated thanks to stronger-than-expected quarterly results. Nexi also maintained its momentum in digital payments, with first-half results meeting expectations, which contributed to the spread tightening on its 0% 02/2028 convertible bond.
